Help Us Support Local Families In Need!

The Tikkun Olam Committee needs help supporting 20 families from Central America who have found themselves in Willimantic through the Nurturing Families Network, sponsored by Day Kimball Health Care with funding from the CT Early Childhood Department. Our own Techy Gochros is working to support this group of women and young children who no longer have support due to the ending of the American Rescue Plan Act. Although these families receive support from many amazing Willimantic community social service agencies (WAIM, Access Agency, Planned Parenthood, and Generations), more is needed!

Here are the specific needs that we can support:

- Walmart Gift Cards – Smaller denominations will allow more families to be helped!
- Winter Clothes: Boys/Girls, 3 months – 3 years, New/Gently used
- Diapers: Size 1 – Size 7
- Baby Wipes
- Vegetable Oil
- Salt
- Maseca Flour (found in the Goya aisle at Stop & Shop)
- Small bags of white rice

Please leave donations in the basket in the Temple lobby (next to the Bean Box.) Please give Gift Card donations directly to Jackie in the office. If you have any questions or need help in getting your donation to the temple, please don't hesitate to contact Doreen Simonsen for more information or assistance at (860) 420-9890 or doreensimonsen@gmail.com.

“WE WILL NOT BE SILENT”

This month, at the end of Hanukkah and before a new and uncertain year begins, this column is difficult to write. On October 7th, Israelis, and many Jews all over the world, lost their sense of security and safety. We have witnessed shocking demonstrations on college campuses and elsewhere calling for “genocide” for the Jews. It is the Pandora’s box that is now wide open, its evil unleashed to reawaken ancient hatreds and fears of “the other”. And as we know, these fears and hatreds are not just for the Jews (the canary in the coal mine), but for anyone that is different from the majority or from one’s own social and ethnic group.

Hate crimes against Jews have surged, but so have attacks and hate crimes against Muslims. And injustices towards people of color, towards anyone who is different from a mythical norm, also are fomented. Is it that people in general do not feel safe?

So the question is, what do we do? We cannot sit silently, retreat to our own armed fortresses, take down our mezuzahs, not wear our Soloman seals or any other identifying symbols. Nor can we turn inward, ignoring the threats and harm to others. In 2016, the Temple was the prime organizer of an Interfaith Working Group in the Windham Region. We called

TREE OF LIFE - INSCRIBER NEEDED!

In the Greer Auditorium in the Temple are two beautiful wall hangings of the Tree of Life. One of the Trees of Life has room for names to be added, but we need someone who has good handwriting and can paint the names on the Tree. A ladder is needed to reach the wall hanging, so you would need to be secure on a ladder.

For a few years now, I've been trying to promote a renewal and reconstruction of an obscure Jewish fasting practice called Tsom Shovavim. Why do I do it? I mean, I barely make a dent promoting what the tradition considers one of the most important holidays, Shavuot, and that is a celebration with cheesecake! So 12 days of fasting over six weeks?! Seems like a hard sell.

I do it because Tsom Shovavim seems very suited to our times, offering a ritual practice for the very necessary turn from despair to hope. It's so easy to beat ourselves up! So easy to give up! And here, hiding in the corners of Jewish tradition, is a practice of discovering that beating ourselves up is itself the sin to repent of, a practice of cleansing ourselves of despair.

The story associated with Shovavim (in my version) (this year): After Adam and Eve ate the fruit and were expelled from the garden, and Cain killed Abel, Adam gave up. He thought he and the whole human enterprise were doomed. So he refused to sleep with Eve for a hundred thirty years. God thought that was terrible. It damaged the world. The tikkun (the repair) for that damage began much later in Egypt. The Israelites had been there also a hundred thirty years and Moses' mother, Yocheved, was a hundred thirty years old, when she gave birth to Moses. She dared to reclaim God's hopefulness from the days of Eden by seeing that Moses "was good – ki tov," in spite of Pharaoh's decree that he was so dangerous he should be thrown in the Nile. Over the next six Torah portions, Moses (with God's help) will defeat Pharaoh and teach the Israelites and the world that it is possible to build a society that is good and just.

Those six Torah portions have names that form the acronym "Shovavim," which means "wayward" or "rebellious." There's a passage in Jeremiah in which God says, twice, "shuvu banim shovavim – return wayward/rebellious youth." In what way are we "wayward?" Rebbe Nachman says in our believing about ourselves that we're somehow separated from God, the SOURCE OF HOPE. And so we're called to return, as Yocheved and Moses did. I'm also interested in the translation "rebellious." In one sense, it might be read as calling those who rebel against God to return to God. But we might also understand it as a call to return to rebellion – against modern Pharaohs and the forces of despair. 'Come back, rebellious youth! We need you!'

So the practice: Over the six weeks of Shovavim, the first six Torah portions of the book of Exodus, one might fast from dawn to sunset each Monday and Thursday. (There are alternative versions in the tradition that replace fasting with going vegetarian, giving tzedakah, or fasting from un-useful talk.) This year, the first Monday fast would be New Years Day (one doesn't fast on holidays – does that count?) and the last Thursday would be February 8th.

And why fasting? In Judaism, fasting is associated with return (teshuvah). In general, fasting is a powerful spiritual practice that promotes awareness,

SHABBAT SHIRAH - THE SHABBAT OF POETRY AND SONG

Shabbat Shirah is the Shabbat at which the Song of the Sea, the triumphant song celebrating the Exodus from Egypt is read as part of the Saturday morning service. This year, we'll celebrate it both Friday night and Saturday morning. Friday January 26th, join us for Shabbes dinner with the Young Emissaries. They'll be sharing some songs from Israel. For many years, the Emissaries have shared some Israeli music at a T.G.I. Shabbes celebration and it's always very well-received, so this year we're giving them two opportunities for musical sharing: Shabbat Shirah and the March T.G.I. Shabbes. Come celebrate!

On Saturday January 27th, as is usual on Shabbat Shirah the service will be filled with poetry. We'd love to have your input. Do you have a poem (by yourself or someone else) to contribute? It should be on one of the themes of the service:

- waking up, getting ready for the day, our physical bodies and world, housing the divine
- connection through language, poetry, song, emotion,
- morning, the passage of time, day and night, creation, the cosmos and nature
- love, learning, mutual responsibility
- unity
- hope or freedom or justice or the Exodus from Egypt
- ancestors
- the power of love, the possibility of deep change
- holiness
- Shabbat
- Holy space, prayer
- gratitude, everyday miracles, peace

If you'd like to contribute a poem for Rav Jeremy to consider using, please send it to him (ravjeremy@templebnaiisrael.org) by Tuesday, January 23rd. Thanks!

Thanks to Margi Mossberg, Carol Kraus, Susan Meisler and Debbie Stoloff and to all the volunteers who have been visiting Grace while she recovers from illness.

Let’s continue to check in with each other and reach out to those who we know need some assistance. Our monthly leaders will know who is currently in need. As always, please contact the committee co-chairs, Fran Jaffe or Ellie Shane, if you have any questions or concerns.

together faith leaders from the three Abrahamic religions—Judaism, Christianity, and Islam—to combat rampant anti-Muslim sentiment being propagated in the national media. We said this was not who we are as a community, and over the next several years, we held public forums, blanketed the area with “Welcome the Stranger” signs and banners with quotes from each of the Abrahamic faiths, and shared our traditions with one another. Then the pandemic caused us all to turn inward.

Now may be the time to turn outward again, to organize with other people from the broader community, to dialogue, to combat hatred and fear of “the other.” Rav Jeremy has already started this outreach. Let us know what you think and what you can do. We need willing hands and hearts to build bridges and to face what I believe will be a difficult journey ahead. And we need those of you who can lead. I will help and support. Please contact me at sheilabamdur@gmail.com.

RABBINIC REFLECTIONS

purposefulness, and the sense that one has some control over their own life. I first discovered Tsom Shovavim when seeking a Jewish tradition that might offer some of the spiritual benefits I noticed of the extended fasting of Ramadan in Islam.

I’ve created a short liturgy to recite each morning of the fast. It understands that passage in Jeremiah as rejecting un-useful shame, urging a “just do it” attitude of return to God, truth, justice, and equity. It goes like this:

Jeremiah 3:22-4:2

“Return, ye backsliding, rebellious children, I will heal your backslidings.”

“Here we are, we have come to You; For You are the HOPEFUL our God.

Truly the hills have proved false, The mountains a confused uproar; Truly the salvation of Israel lies in the LIBERATING our God.

But shame has devoured our parents’ labor since our youth; Their flocks and their herds, their sons and their daughters:

‘Let us lie down in our shame, and let our confusion cover us; For we have sinned against the ETERNAL our God, we and our ancestors, From our youth even unto this day; And we have not hearkened to the voice of the ETERNAL our God.’”

“If you would return, O Israel, says the ETERNAL, return unto Me; And if you would remove your detestable things from My sight, and not waver; And would swear by the life of the ETERNAL in truth, in justice, and in equity; then shall the nations become blessed by It, and by That One will they become praised.”

Rebbe Nachman :

Gevalt, Jews! Do not despair! The main thing is to be as strong as you can, for there is no despairing in the world!

Have mercy on us and hear us crying out! And let us merit to bring forth awareness and knowledge and general redemption!

Come back, rebels! Come back, youth!

Happy Secular New Year! There is much that our committee is and will be doing this year and we invite our larger community to join with us as much as you are able.

First, THANK YOU ALL for your response to WAIM's call to support energy and rent assistance funds for our neighbors in need. Your contributions and fundraising efforts for the Walk for Warmth allowed WAIM to raise over $40,000 for their energy assistance and rent fund. It is possible that Temple Bnai Israel will once again be recognized as a faith community that has raised one of the highest levels! Thank you for your generosity.

On Friday, February 2nd, our synagogue's Dayenu Circle is sponsoring a climate march along with others partners including IREJN (Interreligious Eco-Justice Network), Sierra Club CT, CT League of Conservation Voters, Save the Sound, and many others. After a lackluster session in 2023, folks that care about the climate, the planet, and the wellbeing of all people in the state are coming together to put pressure on our elected officials and regulatory agencies to Keep Connecticut's Climate Promise. Focusing on issues like greenhouse gas reduction, clean energy, housing, job creation, and corporate responsibility, we will come together to march through Hartford on February 2nd and will keep up pressure on the legislature throughout the 2024 session. We are hoping for an enormous turnout to remind the powers that be who they work for and of our inalienable rights to a safe, healthy, and sustainable world. Please join this effort. We will arrange carpooling to Hartford. Look out for a poster and sign-making event prior to the event and share this information widely.

The following day, Saturday February 3rd, is our annual HIAS REFUGEE SHABBAT. On this very special Bagel and Bible, we will have a guest speaker from HIAS and another very impressive guest. Please come to learn about the state of refugees and the work of HIAS – more details are coming.

Please also help our efforts to support young Guatemalan mothers who Techy Gochros works with. Please see the adjoining article with specifics that are needed for these moms and their babies, and as always, thank you for your tremendous support. Please contact Merle at jermerle@att.net with questions or ideas.

Shalom, chaverim/ot!

As I write this to you, our program is on a well-deserved winter break. I hope that all of our students and their families are finding some time to rest and reboot during this rather busy time of year when so many different areas of our lives demand our attention. We've been working hard in Jewish Explorations, and I wanted to share some of the highlights from this past month.

Our Jewish Explorations K-2 cohort met this past month at Shabbat Experience and had a lot of fun learning parsha Miketz with Morah Becca! Not only did we traverse the playground looking for elements that we saw in the Torah portion, but we also learned some fun games to go with it. We also had a nature walk discussion during which we brainstormed what "seven years of good" and "seven years of bad" would look like. All of this, plus some impermanent art and some dramatic play, added up to a great time!

What does it mean to spread light in the darkness? What does it mean to pray "correctly"—is there a "right" way to pray? How do we "do Shabbat" in a way that is personally meaningful and important?

These are only some of the questions our grade 3-6 classes have been discussing. They have wrestled with some pretty intense concepts and are creating some intriguing responses! From writing their own prayers to designing their own "homegrown" Shabbat activities, these students are demonstrating critical thinking and problem-solving to address these important questions. It's inspiring to see them!

Additionally, our attendance increased for this month's Shabbat Experience, which is super exciting! The more the merrier was definitely true this month as we sang, discussed, played, and learned. In addition, we've been learning the prayers from the Saturday morning Shabbat service. You should hear our Modeh/Modah Ani!

Rav Jeremy's class continue their exploration of the idea of mitzvah. They learned the different denominations' approaches to "what Jews do and why". Denominational bingo and memory games were a way to review the topic.

And of course, our students learned with Netanel and Hila, our amazing Israeli emissaries. In addition to fun games and activities that teach us about Israeli culture, we did a great activity with Netanel, who helped us to make beautiful paper lanterns and then illuminate them using a cell phone flashlight.

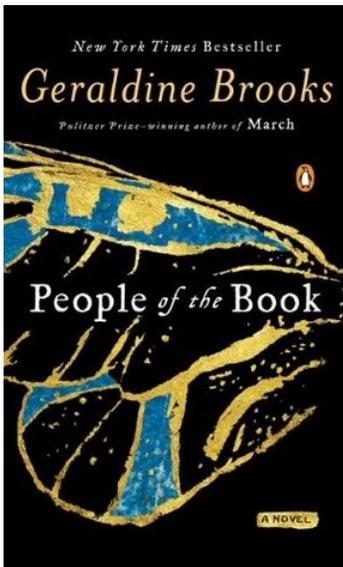

I wish that for all of us this year. Let's all focus on spreading some light in 2024.

Happy secular New Year, chaverim/ot. Every best wish for a beautiful 2024 filled with joy and illumination.

B'shalom,
Morah Dara

People of the Book--Insights About Passover

As part of our Passover celebration, the Hochberg Committee on the Holocaust and Human Rights Education invites you to read Geraldine Brooks' People of the Book. On April 14, 2023 at 3:00 PM, we will meet together to discuss this book, the Sarajevo Haggadah, and the stories you would like to share about the Haggadahs that your family has used.

People of the Book, a novel by Geraldine Brooks reimagines the history of the Sarajevo Haggadah through the eyes of Hannah Heath, an Australian book conservator. (The Hochberg Committee purchased a replica of this unique 14th C Haggadah whose extraordinary illuminations accompany the history of the Jewish people from Creation.) The context that Brooks imagines makes the characters—some of them based on real people--more memorable.

The novel describes how Hannah arrives in Sarajevo to restore this historic Haggadah. As she studies its pages she notes evidence of its use—salt crystals, a wine stain mixed with blood, a stray hair from a cat and the remnants of an insect's wing. The author then uses these fragments of evidence to spin an intriguing story about what might have happened to the Haggadah's hosts. The characters in her story occupy four different locations and time periods from 1996 back to the fifteenth century.

In Bosnia during WWII, a Muslim risks his life to protect the manuscript from the Nazis. In early 1900's, Vienna, the Haggadah becomes a pawn in the struggle against antisemitism. In fifteenth century Venice, a Catholic priest rescues it from the sparks of the Inquisition. In Barcelona when Spanish Jews are forced into exile, the Haggadah's scribe barely survives.

People of the Book is available from your library, on Kindle, or can be purchased online at a low cost. Watch for date and time when we will gather to share our Passover stories. We will also have the replica of the Sarajevo Haggadah on display, and invite you to bring your favorite Haggadah to share.

If you would like to RSVP early, please contact Susan Meisler at susanmeisler15@gmail.com.

Choosing a shared future - a conversation with Standing Together

Sunday, January 21st, 11AM EST

In the midst of war, turmoil in Israeli society, and an increasingly polarized global discourse, must we take the side of exclusively #freepalestine or exclusively #standwithIsrael, or can we instead stand united with people on both sides who want to live in peace and security?

Join SAJ and a group of other Reconstructionist congregations for a special online panel with Standing Together, a grassroots movement in Israel/Palestine organizing Jewish and Palestinian citizens towards peace, equality and social justice.

CHEVRA KADISHA

After a Jew dies, a burial society, the Chevra Kadisha (literally, "holy society") prepares the body for interment. This process, called Taharah (purification), involves the ritual cleansing and subsequent dressing of the body, by men for males and by women for females, in preparation for burial. This requires training in the traditions and prescribed methods involved in traditional Jewish burials. This is a very personal and meaningful mitzvah we perform to support our fellow members.

We welcome anyone interested in joining us in this sacred work. Please contact Fran Jaffe (franjaffe@earthlink.net) or Ken Dardick (kdardick@gmail.com), Co-Chairs, or Rav Jeremy (ravjeremy@templebnaiisrael.org).

Remember to light your Yahrzeit candle on the night before the date shown. It is also appropriate to join our Shabbat celebration to say Kaddish on the Shabbat when your loved one's name is read, and to give tzedakah in your loved one's memory. May their memory be a blessing.
