Beans, beans, the magical fruit!

They're so delicious, and nutritious to boot!

To feed hungry neighbors, it really rocks

To go to the Temple lobby, and leave them in the box!

The Precious Nature of Simple Connections

During our Rosh Hashanah service last week, Rav Jeremy explained that the Ritual Committee decided "Connection" is the theme for this High Holidays. They recognized that many of us have been profoundly effected by the isolation and trauma caused by the last three years of the Covid-19 pandemic. He noted that the power of our connection to each other can help us overcome this tragedy. I really resonated with this theme and was inspired to start paying more attention to the connections that happen to me and around me.

In today's fast-paced and technologically driven world, it is easy to overlook the significance of simple connections between people. There is profound beauty and value that lies within these connections. As I sat in the back of the synagogue, I noticed my friends Anne and Doreen carefully enter holding Grace's arm. Grace has become frail and needs help getting to and from temple. I watched as they helped Grace settle into a seat. Then they made sure she was comfortable as they took their seats next to her. My heart was so touched by watching their genuine connection to each other and Grace.

One of my favorite things to do at TBI is to help set up the food for a kiddush or other event. I really enjoy the kibbitzing in the kitchen. It's in the kitchen, while we arrange the fruit platter or rummage through the cabinets, that we get to know about each other's lives. There is often a discussion about someone's challah recipe or a recent vacation or family get together. These casual connections often lead to some heartfelt conversations and provide a real sense of belonging.

In our pursuit of grand achievements and extraordinary experiences, we often overlook the magic that lies within seemingly ordinary moments. Last week the sanctuary was filled with families celebrating our Jewish New Year. As I looked at the crowd I saw a father quietly help his son arrange his Tallit on his shoulders. It was a simple but precious moment of connection that filled me with warmth. I

A Jewish Phoenix Myth

Several years ago, Merle and I went to a seminar at Wesleyan about an art project called “Black Phoenix Rising.” The project pushed against the essentialist association blackness and death, a result of racism, by creatively drawing on the resurrection myth of the Phoenix. That association can work its way into the souls of both white and black people, or people with lots of different relationships to racism and the history of racism in our society. It can lead to a numbing to the deaths of black people or devaluing their lives; it can lead to being stuck in an identity of victimhood.

The same issue applies to Jews. We, too, need to push against the notion that all we are is death, the Holocaust. I remember when Arielle was middle-school age and all the Jewish-themed YA books were Holocaust-themed. Like with blacks and racism, the identification of Jews with suffering and death is also dangerous from the outside and self-defeating from the inside.

At that Wesleyan seminar, it occurred to me that, in fact, we perform a kind of Phoenix myth every year, which might be understood as a push-back against the identification of Jews and death. It’s called Simchat Torah. Simchat Torah (literally, “Torah-Joy”) is the holiday at the end of the three-week fall holiday season, on which we celebrate the never-ending cycle of Torah. If you read the Torah reading for that morning as one story, this is that incredible story: “And Moses died... By beginning, God created the heavens and the earth.”

Through the Torah, which we sometimes refer to as a Tree of Life, we too triumph over death. Even in its most limited sense of a scroll with the Five Books of Moses written in it, the Torah is endless. Because we own it and perform it, we can choose to start again from the beginning, and we do so every year. “Torah,” in its broader sense as Jewish text-based learning, is also a bit more deathless. For millennia, we’ve continually found new, deeper or different meaning, adding new stories, interpretations, understandings, instructions. In “Torah’s” most broad sense, as the Jewish version of “praxis,” the human activity of communal seeking after understanding of our lives and surroundings in order to transform them for the better, Torah is literally a source of life. It’s our critical, questioning, listening, active, responsive enlivening of ourselves and the world around us.

That Phoenix-like insistence on living is worth celebrating! I hope you’ll do so at the joint Simchat Torah service detailed on the cover.

A LITTLE NOTE OF AMAZED GRATITUDE FROM RAV JEREMY

Wasn't it great to see all those children on the High Holidays?! I'm writing before Yom Kippur, but there must have been over twenty that participated on Rosh Hashanah! That long Torah silver parade! And the stairs filled with children sitting with me and Daniel for Adon Olam on Rosh Hashanah! Naches!

Thanks to everyone who provided activities and snacks for them on the holidays: Stephanie, Dara, Rebecca, Jill, and Gideon! Thanks to Dara for her insistence on "build it and they will come!" Thanks for Stephanie also for joyfully and skillfully shepherding our program for the last several years! Thanks to Ishay and the Marketing and Membership committee for making sure we were really reaching out and welcoming to all who might benefit from and contribute to our wonderful community!

INTRO TO JUDAISM CLASS COMING SOON!

Rav Jeremy will teach an Intro to Judaism class beginning in November. All are welcome to join! Maybe you're Jewish and would like to deepen your understanding of the rich variety of Judaism's resources. Maybe you're not Jewish and would like to learn what it's all about. Maybe you're interested in becoming Jewish or are raising Jewish kids. Come explore together! Watch for details very soon.

Thanks to Carol and Fran, our leaders for September. Fortunately, it was a quiet month.

We continue to bring little gift bags to the Jewish residents of the local assisted living centers and nursing homes during this holiday season. This month, Debbie, Carol and Ellie took on Rosh Hashanah. In December, we'll do the same for Hanukkah. We would love to have more volunteers!

Although I write this when the summer is just ending, I know the cooler weather is coming. I'm happy that we can continue to bring warmth and comfort to those in need. Unfortunately, we have no one on hand for November or beyond. If you can help out over the next few months, please let us know.

If you or anyone you know needs some assistance, call or email our monthly leaders or the committee co-chairs, Fran Jaffe and Ellie Shane.

Let's all hope that the nice weather continues into the fall and that this winter will be gentle. Best wishes for healthy, peaceful and sweet New Year!

Fran and Ellie

Happy New Year, chaverim/ot!

What an incredible feeling it was on the second day of Rosh Hashanah to watch Rav Jeremy daven Adon Olam at the end of services while sitting on the bimah in the sanctuary with 17 Jewish Explorations children! And that feeling was extended the following Wednesday when our Jewish Explorations program was full of smiling, happy children who came to form a learning community and get to know each other before meeting with our new Israeli emissaries, Hila and Netanel. It was wonderful to start our school-year journey together, and I can't wait to see what this year brings!

We have hired a wonderful Early Childhood teacher, Morah Becca Bowling, who will be working with our youngest Jewish Explorations students for Shabbat Experience as well as with our Early Childhood friends! Morah Becca comes to us with years of experience in child care and in elementary school, and is herself a Jewish Explorations alumna. We are so thrilled to have her with us. Welcome, Morah Becca!

We are still looking for a teacher for the upper grades, so if you or someone you know is interested, please refer them to the ad in the Employment section of our Temple website.

We are so excited to welcome new faces, and to welcome back returning friends as well! Please remember that if you know of any students who would like to join our Jewish Explorations program, we are enrolling grades K-7 in our school-age program as well as younger students in our Early Childhood program. Please feel free to reach out to me for more information at morahdarabowling@gmail.com, or Jackie in the Temple office at office@templebnaiisrael.org.

Until I see you again, be well and do good.

B'shalom,
Morah Dara Bowling

THANK YOU SUKKAHNATORS!

The Sukkahnators for 5784 erected the Temple sukkah in world record time this year! Special swag buttons are available for anyone who helps us take down the sukkah after the holiday.

We hope you have had a wonderful high holiday season and are enjoying the brisk autumnal month of October. Speaking of weather, it used to be that folks would talk about the weather when they were not so sure what to talk to someone about. Now weather has become a much more serious topic of conversation. And if you recall, the Tikkun Olam Committee was to host a weatherization/energy efficiency event in July which had to be postponed for a weather event (tornado watch to be exact). Our event will be rescheduled for the Spring and I will keep you updated on when.

Meanwhile, I encourage you to register with EnergizeCT for an energy assessment, as members of our synagogue community. Through an energy assessment, you may be eligible to receive upgrades in the form of efficient light bulbs and weather-stripping of doors, and for incentives and rebates for major energy upgrades for your home such as heat pumps, insulation, and Energy Star appliances. Go to this website to get started: <https://energizect.com/energy-evaluations/HES>. If you are income-eligible, please apply here: <https://energizect.com/energy-evaluations/income-eligible-options>. If you rent property, your tenants and you are eligible to take advantage of these savings and programs.

Several households in our community have already taken advantage of this program and we hope you will too! Please let Merle or Jackie in the Temple Office know if you have an appointment scheduled for your home or have already had the energy audit, as we are trying to get at least 20-30% of members to commit to this program. Thank you so much to those who have already done so!

We are also doing the work to keep our spiritual home as energy efficient as possible and will keep you updated on that, as well as the possible acquisition of Federal grant funding to make significant upgrades. Initial surveys have been submitted and now we are in the waiting phase.

Please join us for WAIM's Walk for Warmth this November 19th preceded by the Interfaith Thanksgiving service. This is a major fundraising event for WAIM to be certain to have funding in place for the winter energy season that will help our neighbors struggling to stay warm. More about this event to come. You can register as part of the Temple Bnai Israel team on the runreg site that will soon be set up and linked to waimct.org. Our WAIM Delegate, Peggy Beckett-Rinker is also looking for help volunteering at WAIM. If you can lend some Hours, regularly or once in a while, please contact Peggy: peggybeckettrinker1@gmail.com.

FROM THE PRESIDENT (continued)*Hillary Stern

was reminded of my childhood, fidgeting in the temple pews during services as my grandmother searched her bag for candy to keep us kids quiet. This memory of my connection to my own family brought me joy.

Thank you, Rav Jeremy and the Ritual Committee for reminding me that in a world that can often feel disconnected and impersonal, it is essential to recognize the precious nature of simple connections between people. The shared experiences, emotional support, and sense of belonging that these connections provide are invaluable. Let us cultivate and celebrate these connections, for they hold the power to enrich our lives, foster a sense of community, and bring out the best in us all.

CHEVRA KADISHA

After a Jew dies, a burial society, the Chevra Kadisha (literally, "holy society") prepares the body for interment. This process, called Taharah (purification), involves the ritual cleansing and subsequent dressing of the body, by men for males and by women for females, in preparation for burial. This requires training in the traditions and prescribed methods involved in traditional Jewish burials. This is a very personal and meaningful mitzvah we perform to support our fellow members.

We welcome anyone interested in joining us in this sacred work. Please contact Fran Jaffe (franjaffe@earthlink.net) or Ken Dardick (kdardick@gmail.com), Co-Chairs, or Rav Jeremy (ravjeremy@templebnaiisrael.org).
